Conway, Bevin carry Gallatin

In Gallatin County only 462 out of 6,227 registered voters or about 7 percent cast ballots Tuesday in the election to determine which candidates would run for governor and other statewide offices in November.

Gallatin's Democrats favored Jack Conway in the race for governor. He got 179 votes here to Geoff Young's 82 votes even though Young's choice for Lieutenant Governor was Johnathan Masters, a Gallatin County High School valedictorian.

As expected, Conway also carried the state in landslide fashion by receiving about 80 percent of the Democratic votes.

Other Democrats who did well in Gallatin County included Alison Lundergan Grimes who carried the county with 177 votes. Her opponent, Charles Lovett got 90 votes here. She will face Republican Stephen Knipper in the fall.

Rick Nelson carried the Democratic Primary for State Treasurer here with 107 votes. Allison Ball was the Republican choice here with 92 votes.

The most closely watched race across the state was the bitter battle in the Republican Primary for Governor. Matt Bevin carried Gallatin County in that race with 111 votes. James Comer received 43 votes here, Hal Heiner got 21 and Will T. Scott got 16.

As the News went to press, Bevin held a four-percentage point lead over Heiner across the state and the margin was expected to be close throughout the night.

The most votes in Gallatin County came in the Lower Warsaw Precinct where 81 ballots were cast. The fewest votes were in Glencoe where only 39 voters went to the polls.

Man, woman found dead in parked car

Exhaust fumes may have killed couple

The Gallatin County Sheriff's Department is investigating the deaths of a man and woman who were found in the back seat of a car on Lothridge Lane east of Warsaw last Wednesday morning, May 13.

The bodies of Violet Iles, 25, and David Long, 32, were found inside Long's 1995 Dodge Neon by Long's brother, Kevin Long, at 6:40 a.m. David and Kevin Long live in separate homes on Lothridge Lane while Iles lived with her parents in a home located on U.S. 42 near Lothridge Lane.

"Right know we're not sure what killed them but we suspect they were asphyxiated from fumes that escaped into the car from its exhaust system," Sheriff Josh Neale said.

Neale also said TV reports that the couple were having sex were reckless and unsubstantiated.

"They had the engine running because it was cool outside," Neale said. "For all we know, they were just sleeping."

He also a cause of death for the couple won't be known until toxicology reports are completed which takes four to six weeks.

Kevin Long found the car and bodies near his mobile home as he walked his children to meet their school bus. He pulled his brother out of the car and tried to revive him as he talked to paramedics over the phone. David Long and Violet Iles were pronounced dead by Gallatin County deputy coroners Jack Webster and Ken Laferty.

Gallatin Has Talent

Some of Gallatin County's most talented singers and musicians will perform at a Warsaw concert this Friday, May 22, to raise money for the Gallatin County Food Pantry. The performers will take the stage at the Gallatin County High School auditorium at 7 p.m. Admission is free but donations to the Food Pantry will be encouraged.

Among those who will perform in the "Gallatin Has Talent" concert is professional musician Tyler Mullins. Gallatin County Judge/executive Ken McFarland and Jim Kinman, who won the Swiss Idol singing contest in Vevay, Ind. last month, are also in the lineup. So is 2013 Swiss Idol winner, Lucy Parker, and the 2010 Swiss Idol winner and recording artist Brittany Gilstrap.

Well-known Gallatin County elementary teacher and winner of the 2008 Milken Educator Award Myra Morgan, folk music performer Will Wallace and Clay Warnick from the Gallatin County News will also perform.

Three injured in crash on U.S. 42

Three Warsaw people were badly hurt last week in a head-on traffic collision on U.S. 42 near Mudlick Road in Verona.

The accident occurred last Thursday, May 14, when a 2005 Hyundai Accent driven by Todd Freyler, 45, left its north-bound lane, crossed the center line, and crashed into a 2000 Mazda minivan driven south by Alicia Lopez Bautista, 41. In her front passenger seat was her daughter, Heidi Guzman Lopez, 9.

Freyler, Bautista, and Lopez were all transported by Aircare to University Hospital in Cincinnati.

Freyler was listed in critical condition with multiple injuries and is still hospitalized. Bau-

Gallatin County's high school girls basketball team was introduced to its new coach Monday morning in the school library.

Keller Menke, 23, has been hired to replace Coach Holly Roberts, who gave up her position for personal reasons but will remain a teacher at the school.

Principal and athletic director Jon Jones introduced Menke to the team and said Gallatin County was lucky to get a person with her enthusiasm and character.

"Keller brings excitement and energy to our program," Jones said. "She's enthusiastic about carrying on the winning tradition of Lady Wildcat basketball. Her eyes light up when she talks about playing fast and the pressure defense. She'll push her players to do their best."

Menke was a star player at Mason County High School where she scored 1,600 points before graduating. She received a scholarship to play basketball at St. Catherine's College in Louisville but a severe hip injury ended her college basketball career early. After the injury, she transferred to Morehead State University where she graduated this spring. Last year, she started her coaching career at Rowan County High School where she oversaw the junior varsity team.

"I'm excited and thrilled to have this opportunity and can't wait to get started," said Menke after she met her new team. "We're going to work hard and have some fun too, I'm sure about that."

Menke said though she was recruited to play as a shooting guard in college, she has played all positions on the floor.

"I know some coaches yell and scream at their players but that's not my style," said Menke. "I believe in communication and know players will do the right thing if you show them how and give them an opportunity to succeed."

She also said she considers her college coach at St. Catherine's, Lena Bramblett, her mentor and still talks to her regularly about basketball and life in general.

It was clear Gallatin's Lady Wildcats were impressed and pleased with their new coach. They joked and laughed together and before the meeting was over, Menke invited the players to her upcoming wedding on Sept. 22. Her fiancé works in Florence and the couple plans to buy a home in the Walton area.

Menke does not yet have a teaching certificate. She has been hired to work as an instructional aide at the school.

She plans to have the gym open during the summer for the girls and have more organized practices as the season nears.

I still feel queasy when I see a grape

This and That

Wineries are becoming popular in Kentucky and because I work for a newspaper, I've been invited to attend a seminar that shows people how to grow grapes and make wine.

At first, it sounded like a good idea. As I thought a little more about the invitation, however, I began to have second thoughts.

I remembered back in my younger days when Timmy Willis and I would hang around together. Timmy was self-reliant. He caught fish, tanned hides and cooked many of his own meals.

Timmy continually sought out new challenges and I wasn't surprised when he told me one summer afternoon he was going to make wine.

My friend had checked out a book from our local library on the fine art of wine making. He rounded up all the hardware he needed from his father's workshop. There was only one missing ingredient, the grapes. Those, too, would be easy to get because his grandfather kept a small grape arbor at his Northern Virginia farm.

The only problem Timmy had was that his parents didn't think 15-year-old boys should be experimenting with wine. For that reason, our wine-making activities took place by the dark of night inside a small shed that hadn't been used in years.

For two weeks, wine became our lives. We squeezed grapes, strained juice and facilitated the fermentation process with Timmy's special ingredients. Fifteen-year-old boys usually aren't known for their patience and we were no different. Timmy's book said wine must be "aged" to gain character but Timmy decided ours had enough character in about two weeks.

I'll never forget the night of our wine tasting. We used empty soft drink bottles for wine bottles and sat on lawn chairs in Timmy's backyard toasting our talent as master vintners.

After I drank about half my bottle, however, I began to grow concerned. First, because the more I drank, the thicker the wine became. By the time I reached the bottom of my bottle, I had to chew my wine before I could swallow it. Timmy said that was natural with homemade wine. He also said I shouldn't worry that I could no longer feel my toes.

One bottle was all we could get down. After that, we both became so violently ill, Timmy's little brother went crying to his mother. She was not happy with what she found in her backyard.

After a couple of days, we recovered. Timmy's wine making tools were smashed, we had to replace all the grapes he had taken from his grandfather and neither of us were let out of the house again for a month. Our sunny summer had turned dark.

For that reason, I think I'd better forgo the invitation to attend that seminar on wineries. I still feel a little queasy when I see a grape.

Mike Murphy answers Rick Dunaway's charges

Dear Editor,

In last week's story about the Glencoe City Council meeting, I was amused to read councilman Rick Dunaway's comments about me helping the new administration file its paper work.

Mr. Dunaway fails to understand that it's my choice who I help, not his. I helped new Mayor Mike Hampton because he asked me to, once he realized the city wasn't getting the police protection funds it deserves because of House Bill 413.

This was explained to the council during its April meeting. No council member questioned me about my role. So, it doesn't surprise me that Mr. Dunaway waited for me not to be present to bash me during a council meeting.

As for my not helping the previous mayor. Let me ask: would you help if you were under constant threat of lawsuits, slander and defamation? I don't think so.

In closing, while this is not Washington D.C, it seems Mr. Dunaway has the same mentality as our national politicians: Blame the previous administration for their inability to govern.

Ketron thanks road workers for drain work

Dear Editor:

I'd like to thank all the county road workers for the superior work they did cleaning out the drainage ditch and replacing the culvert pipe under my driveway.

It took several years, but they finally completed the task, and I hope to now do my part in keeping it cleared out enough so my front yard is no longer the swamp it has become in the past several years.

While trying to mow the grass, the mower would sink in deep boggy mud all the way to the axles.

Kudos to the workers and I'll do my best to keep the ditch clean so it will properly drain and I will not have a swamp as a yard.

Again, my best thanks to all involved.

Kentucky Commentary

Republican primary race got down and dirty

The Republican primary for governor this election season has been the nastiest and most unpredictable contest for Kentucky's highest office since 1967, when Louie Nunn of Glasgow cast thinly veiled aspersions at Marlow Cook's Catholicism.

Religion played a role in this race, too, but the election was affected more by the three major candidates' very different background and campaigns.

The race turned into a swearing contest among:

•Marilyn Thomas of New York who accused Agriculture Commissioner James Comer of abusing her physically and taking her to get an abortion when they were dating in college more than 20 years ago. She refused to answer questions about her allegations, however.

•Comer, who denies the accusation, was clearly damaged by the allegations.

•Hal Heiner, the former Louisville councilman denied his campaign had anything to do with spreading rumors about the matter—an assertion contrary to the evidence.

•Louisville businessman Matt Bevin, who said Heiner told him about the rumors months ago.

A TV ad accused Heiner of bringing “gutter politics” into the race. It came from a pro-Comer “Super PAC”, a political action committee that takes unlimited money and doesn't have to reveal its contributors.

A pro-Heiner Super PAC had attacked Bevin and Comer, giving Heiner the luxury of not being the attacker in a multi-opponent primary, where attackers usually hurt themselves as well as their targets.

But once his running mate, K.C. Crosbie of Lexington, had been linked to a blogger spreading rumors about Comer, he lost that insulation and appeared to suffer from it, losing his lead in the polls.

So, last Friday, Heiner brought his abuse claim to paid TV for the first time, accusing Bevin and Comer of “using these charges to score political points.”

The clear beneficiary of the uproar has been Bevin, who moved into a statistical dead heat with Comer and Heiner. Before that, most observers had given him little chance since he carried baggage from attacks leveled by U.S. Sen. Mitch McConnell in their primary last year.

The general presumption was that the nastiness would decrease turnout in what was already going to be a lightly voted primary. Comer supporters thought that would help them because they have the best network to get voters to the polls.

But Heiner spokesman Doug Alexander said their campaign

“has built the largest turnout program in Kentucky primary history.”

Heiner targeted voters guided by their religious beliefs, a more important element than usual because Thomas claimed Comer took her to get an abortion and Heiner “wears his religion on his sleeve,” as the Courier-Journal's political reporter Joseph Gerth wrote in his profile of the candidate.

A lot went on under the radar in this election, making it especially difficult to predict.

Polling in lightly voted Republican primaries is a tricky business. Most voters said they planned to vote, but most will not.

Only 20 percent of Republicans voted in the last fully contested GOP gubernatorial primary in 2007.

Political watchers are intrigued by these kinds of maneuvers. The results will be out by the time you read this.

Gallatin scored 3 times in the first, third and sixth innings. They also plated a run in the fourth.

Oldham County.

Austin Spada pitched well in defeat. He allowed only 8 hits and 2 earned runs over 6 innings.

The Wildcats managed just 3 hits on the afternoon. Brandon Vest, Mason Wilson and Chandler Jones each had a hit. Wilson drove in the lone run.

Eminence Redux
The following afternoon Gallatin broke loose with a 12-run first run inning on the way to a 14-0 victory.

Jones had 2 of Gallatin's 7 hits. Steurer, Alexander, Caldwell, Zach Beatty and Justin Rassman each had a hit.

Steurer and Alexander drove in 3 runs apiece and Jones added a pair of RBIs.

Caldwell went the distance for the victory, allowing 2 hits and striking out 6.

Lloyd Memorial
Gallatin finished the regular season with a 6-5 victory at Lloyd Memorial. The boys scored a run in the top of the eighth to earn the win.

Wilson and Spada had 3 hits apiece to lead the offense. Jones had 2 hits and Vest and Caldwell both had a hit.

Sports in Kentucky . . . by Bob Watkins

Tribute this week, to a Kentucky Everyman fan.

"Born and raised in a house full of basketball talk," an e-mail said.

William Sparkman is among those who have lived longer, witnessed the parade of winning teams at Kentucky longer and watched from a special place on our map.

"I was born and raised in Mousie, Kentucky (Knott County)," Sparkman wrote.

Typical citizen in Big Blue Nation. Expertise honed by experience, common sense and time, his brand is higher quality than all who have sold out to one and done.

Sparkman's affection for UK hoops seems not measured by money, celebrity and hype, but style, priorities, and skilled team men dating to his favorite coach, Adolph Rupp.

And this: "My dad would turn the game on (teevee), then listen to Cawood Ledford on radio," he said. "Cawood would tell it like it was. ... I miss those days."

The pause from the man from Mousie, reminded me our game has changed so dramatically an NCAA official said the other day, "we've got to make some changes to make our game watchable again."

Watchable again? In Kentucky such words smack of sacrilege.

"I could go on forever with this list," he said, "But if I coached a team I would want these 10."

Finally, Sparkman had an issue to air. "... of all the great players at UK only one has been player of the year. (Anthony) Davis. ... This year Willie (Cauley-Stein) was the best player in the nation. No question!"

Ironically, Sparkman's view is supported by best-there-ever-was Larry Bird. The Indiana Pacers exec told Cauley-Stein last week, he believes the ex-UK star is a $100 million player.

Sparkman is Everyman. From Mousie in Knott County, we can almost hear Sparkman's amen to that.

Memorial Day 2015

Unless you live in the right community and catch the news for that day, you most likely have never heard of The Department of Defense POW/MIA Accounting Agency (DPAA). Their mission is to recover the remains of our service members who have been declared missing or declared killed in action. There is no time frame, nor particular war they will not investigate. Their work is for the most part in the shadows and takes them to countries like Laos, China, Cambodia, Vietnam, South Korea, Western Europe, Indonesia, Miramar, North Africa and very occasionally to North Korea. They are extremely careful in not moving quickly, lest they mistake identity and dash the hopes of next of kin.

I have watched their progress for many years and am remindful that this process is unique to the United States of America. No other country expends the time and resources to account for its war dead like we do. No other country goes out of its way to gain closure with families over their lost family members.

On February 7th, 1968, the US Army Special Forces A-Team Camp at Lang Vei, Republic of South Vietnam, came under attack by the North Vietnamese Army. For the first time the North Vietnamese used tanks in their assault on the camp. Special Forces Master Sergeant James W. Holt, 26 years old, from Hope, Arkansas, was manning a 106mm recoilless rifle trying to knock out these tanks. He ran out of ammunition, and the last time any of the American survivors saw him he was headed for the ammunition bunker. Initially he was declared Missing in Action. Later that was changed to presumed Killed in Action.

On June 21st, 1989, the Socialist Republic of Vietnam (S.R.V.) unilaterally turned over remains that were believed to be those of a U.S. serviceman. Vietnamese officials recovered the remains from a refugee, but lacked necessary documentation for identification. Due to the technology at that time, the remains could not be identified.

In 1995 and 2004, joint U.S./S.R.V. teams excavated areas within the perimeter of the former Special Forces camp at Lang Vei, and recovered human remains. The remains were identified as Sergeant Major Kenneth Hanna, Master Sergeant Charles W. Lindewald, and Sergeant 1st Class James L. Moreland. All three identified servicemen were buried with full military honors on January 15th, 2005, February 5th, 2005 and May 14th, 2011, respectively.

In the identification of Master Sergeant Holt, scientists from the DPAA and the Armed Forces DNA Identification Laboratory used circumstantial evidence, from the 1989 unilateral turnover, and forensic identification tools, including two forms of DNA analysis; one test matched his sister and brothers and another test matched his brothers.

He was missing for 47 years, but now he has been found. Master Sergeant Holt was laid to rest in Arlington National Cemetery on May 14th, 2015. Welcome home.

Racing News

NASCAR officials are investigating Jimmie Johnson's Hendrick Motorsports team for a possible rules violation during the Sprint All-Star Race on Saturday night. A NASCAR official said after the race that a crewman was being investigated for modifying the side skirt on Johnson's car during the race. NASCAR implemented new rules prior to this season preventing teams from modifying the side skirts during a race. NASCAR also has new video cameras monitoring pit road, making such rules violations easier to detect. Any possible penalties would be announced this week.

Help Livestock Beat the Heat

Summer is almost here. We've already experienced some heat, just a taste of what's to come. Humans aren't the only ones who suffer when the temperatures rise. Farm animals feel it too.

The University of Kentucky Agricultural Weather Center regularly monitors heat indices across the state and provides an index of its own – the Livestock Heat Stress Index – to help producers know when heat stress could create a problem for their animals. The county-by-county index indicates three levels of heat stress: no stress, danger stress and emergency stress. It can be found at <http://www.wagwx.ca.uky.edu>.

Periods of heat stress call for livestock producers to be vigilant in making sure their animals are adequately prepared. One of the most important things you can do is provide cool, clean drinking water. Providing an adequate source of drinking water helps keep animals' internal body temperatures within normal limits.

It is also important for animals to have shade and for buildings to be as open as much as possible for adequate ventilation. Sprinkler systems that periodically spray a cool mist on the animals can also be beneficial.

It is best to avoid working your animals during periods of heat stress. You should also avoid transporting livestock during those times. When you must transport livestock, haul fewer animals per load. Planning trips so the animals can be loaded immediately before leaving and unloaded quickly upon arrival can likewise help you minimize the risk.

Motorcycle Safety Tips

Gallatin County Emergency
Management Office
Brandon Terrell, Director

General Guidelines For Riding A Motorcycle Safely

Be visible:

- Remember that motorists often have trouble seeing motorcycles and reacting in time.
- Make sure your headlight works and is on day and night.
- Use reflective strips or decals on your clothing and on your motorcycle.
- Be aware of the blind spots cars and trucks have.
- Flash your brake light when you are slowing down and before stopping.
- If a motorist doesn't see you, don't be afraid to use your horn.
- Dress for safety:
 - Wear a quality helmet and eye protection.
 - Wear bright clothing and a light-colored helmet.
 - Wear leather or other thick, protective clothing.
 - Choose long sleeves and pants, over-the-ankle boots, and gloves.
 - Remember – the only thing between you and the road is your protective gear.

Apply effective mental strategies:

- Constantly search the road for changing conditions. Use MSF's Search, Evaluate, Execute strategy (SEESM) to increase time and space safety margins.
- Give yourself space and time to respond to other motorists' actions.
- Give other motorists time and space to respond to you.
- Use lane positioning to be seen; ride in the part of a lane where you are most visible.
- Watch for turning vehicles.
- Signal your next move in advance.
- Avoid weaving between lanes.
- Pretend you're invisible, and ride extra defensively.
- Don't ride when you are tired or under the influence of alcohol or other drugs.
- Know and follow the rules of the road, and stick to the speed limit.
- Know your bike and how to use it:

- Get formal training and take refresher courses.
 - Call 800.446.9227 or visit www.msf-usa.org to locate the Motorcycle Safety Foundation hands-on RiderCourseSM nearest you.
 - Practice. Develop your riding techniques before going into heavy traffic. Know how to handle your bike in conditions such as wet or sandy roads, high winds, and uneven surfaces.
- Remember: Give yourself space. People driving cars often just don't see motorcycles. Even when drivers do see you, chances are they've never been on a motorcycle and can't properly judge your speed.

May is also National Bike Month

Protect Your Head
Wear a helmet.

Act like a Car Drivers are used to the patterns of other drivers. Don't weave in and out of traffic. The more predictably you ride, the safer you are. Check for traffic. Be aware of traffic around you.

Stay Visible If drivers can see you, they are less likely to hit you. Use lights when biking at night or in low-light conditions.

Don't Get Distracted
Don't listen to music or talk on the phone while riding.

Look, Signal & Look Again Use hand signals to let drivers and other bicyclists know where you're going. Look and make eye contact. Don't assume drivers will stop.

Obey all Traffic Laws & Lights

Stay Alert Keep a lookout for obstacles in your path.

Assure Bicycle Readiness Is your bicycle properly adjusted? Is your saddle in a comfortable position?

Go with the Flow Bike in the direction of traffic.

Do a Quick Bicycle Test Check your brakes and your wheels. Make sure that "quick release" wheels are properly secured.

Sign up now for conservation camps

The conservation camps at Camp Earl Wallace on Lake Cumberland and Camp Robert C. Webb on Grayson Lake still have a few available openings for the upcoming summer.

"Some weeks are full, but we do have a few weeks with spots remaining. Students currently in grades four through six are eligible to attend," said Laura Burford, assistant director of the Information and Education Division of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Summer conservation camp introduces students to skills they carry for the rest of their lives such as firearm safety, wildlife identification, outdoors survival, archery, fishing, casting and swimming. Campers also learn to safely operate motor boats and canoes.

The second annual Venture Camp at Camp Robert C. Webb also has a limited amount of openings left. Venture Camp is an advanced outdoor skills camp for students currently in grades seven and eight that runs from July 27 through July 31.

Participants in Venture Camp go night fishing, learn animal tracking, shoot crossbows, shotguns and .22 rifles, take a pontoon boat trip on Grayson Lake, get introduced to bow fishing and go swimming.

"It was a big hit last year, the participants really enjoyed Venture Camp," Burford said. "This is a great way to introduce youth to the outdoors. We offer transportation from Kenton, Fayette and Jefferson counties for Venture Camp."

Each camp costs, $235 for the week, with a savings of $10 if they apply online at www.fw.ky.gov. The camp fee includes camper insurance, transportation and a junior sportsman's license. Those interested in applying for camp may also call 1-800-858-1549. Burford advised parents to act quickly.

Get elk hunt quota results online

Kentucky quota elk hunters may now go online to see if they were drawn.

This year, 34,001 people from as far away as Hawaii submitted 70,348 applications for the hunt. Kentucky, which supports the biggest elk herd east of the Mississippi River, opened a season for elk in 2001.

The Commonwealth Office of Technology recently performed an independent drawing to determine the winners and the type of permit to be issued. The Commonwealth Office of Technology provided the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources with the names of the successful applicants.

Kentucky will issue 900 general and 10 youth quota elk hunting permits for the 2015-16 season.

Applicants should go online to the department's website at fw.ky.gov and click onto the My Profile tab to see if they were drawn.

Those drawn for an elk hunt will receive an information packet from the department with useful information specific to elk hunting in Kentucky. Hunters are responsible for finding their hunting location.

Hunting areas are divided into an at-large area and four Limited Entry Areas (LEAs). When drawn, all hunters are assigned to the at-large area. Hunters who wish to apply for one of the Limited Entry Areas have until July 3 to do so.

Limited Entry Areas were created in regions with relatively large blocks of public access. These areas are designed to prevent overharvest of elk from land accessible to the public by limiting the number of hunters.

Limited Entry Areas are not trophy management zones, and should not be considered better hunting opportunities because of their different status.

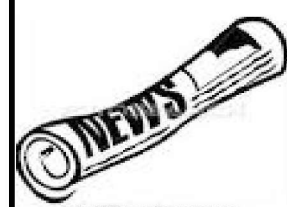

Hunters have a variety of resources available on the department's website to help them decide where to go, including previous harvest results for each county and tract of public land.

Since not all public lands have elk, hunters should look up elk harvest results from previous years to help guide their decision on where to apply.

The department also encourages drawn hunters to thoroughly research potential hunting spots by talking to someone who has hunted elk in Kentucky, visiting the area to scout and interviewing some of Kentucky's licensed elk guides.

Hunters should note that Fishtap Wildlife Management Area (WMA) in Pike County has been designated as Active Restoration Areas and will be off-limits to elk hunting this year.

Rain garden seminar to be held in Vevay

Join the Switzerland County Historical Society to learn how to install a rain garden and about the “hands-on” planting of native plants on Saturday, May 23rd at 10 a.m.

A rain garden is being established at the developing Agriculture Museum Center at 5147 Hwy 56, also known as the Thiebaud farmstead, located three miles west of Vevay. The program will be presented by the Dearborn County Soil & Water Conservation District, made possible by a grant from Clean Water Indiana.

A rain garden takes advantage of rainwater and stormwater runoff in its design and plant selection.

Often a small garden, it's designed to withstand extremes of moisture and concentrations of nutrients.

Ideally they are sited close to the source of the runoff and serve to slow the water as it travels downhill. This gives the stormwater more time to infiltrate and less opportunity to gain momentum and erosive power.

On the surface, a rain garden looks like an attractive garden and may support habitat for birds and butterflies. It can be formal in design or may be incorporated into a larger garden as a border.

What makes it a rain garden is how it gets its water and what happens to that water once it arrives in the garden. Preliminary excavating and fill with appropriate materials will have been completed prior to the workshop.

Join the historical society in learning how to use native plant selection, and see a presentation by Jennifer Hughes from Dearborn County Soil & Water Conservation District. Handouts will be available to guide you in establishing a rain garden of your own.

The workshop is free but reservations are requested so materials can be prepared. Please call 812-427-3560 or email swcomuseums@embarqmail.com if you plan to attend.
